PRESENTATION

The International Seminar on Regional Development (ISRD) is a biennial event, organized by the Graduate Program in Regional Development - PPGDR – Master's Degree and Doctorate of the University of Santa Cruz do Sul – UNISC. The event is a continuity of the National Seminars on Regional Development, whose first edition was held in 1996, on an annual basis. As of 2002, the event has acquired an international scope, is held biennially, and is consolidating itself in Brazil as one of the main events that enables reflection, analysis and interdisciplinary debate on regional development. The debate occurs among Brazilian researchers, professors and students of Graduate Programs in Regional Development and other Graduate Programs in the fields of Social and Human Sciences, as well as foreign researchers and students who develop research on this theme.

The Graduate Programs in Regional Development are privileged spaces for the construction of theoretical and methodological references for this field of knowledge, which is of fundamental importance in the discussion of strategies aimed at promoting territorial development, based on equity and solidarity.

It is understood that the territory presents itself as a contradictory totality, marked by conflicts and tensions in which particular socio-spatial arrangements shape regions.

Considering the current socio-political and economic context in force at international level, and specially in our country, putting Regional Development in Perspective means giving prominence to the process of territory formation, marked by diverse trajectories, characterized by “unity in diversity”, in which the State has the responsibility to manage the contradictions that take shape in the territory.

In this sense, in 2021, the tenth edition’s theme will focus on “Actors, Assets and Institutions: Regional Development in perspective”.

In order to provide the discussion and reflection on these and other issues that the central theme of the X International Seminar on Regional Development raises, the event was organized in four thematic axes that will also guide the arrangement of the round tables and the presentation sessions, as follows:

Axis 1 – Regional Development in perspective: theoretical and methodological challenges

In this axis are accepted papers related to the theoretical and methodological reflection on regional territorial development planning processes, the multiple scales, the different dimensions and contents of regional development processes and policies, among other related topics.

Axis 2 – Actors, Social Organizations and Regional Development

The proposal of this thematic axis is to gather papers, under different theoretical-methodological approaches, that enable the reflection on actions and relations between actors and social organizations that participate in the regional development processes and policies. Methods of organization, articulations of civil society, existing participatory and collaborative practices in promoting regional development. The relations between state actors and civil society and their influence on public policies (formulation, implementation and evaluation), their designs, arrangements and constitution, their relations with other organizations and effects on development processes in different regional territories. In addition, the various institutional arrangements constituted in the State, such as intermunicipal consortia, conferences, regional development councils, governance network, among others.

Axis 3 – Territorial Assets and Regional Development

The proposal of this thematic axis is to reflect on the assets, that is, the elements that allow to explain how reality connects in a relational way in development processes. It intends to emphasize resources (assets/capital) that are mobilized by territorial agents, giving visibility to the structure of access and use of natural resources, and organization of the regional productive structure, focusing on the relation established between rural areas and urban centers and on the reinvestment of capital as a way of expanding opportunities in the territory. The following topics will be considered: environmental sustainability, economic viability, territorial identity, sociocultural diversity, social capital, resilience of territories, climate change and its effects on development, solidary economy, social technologies, among other topics related to the central theme of this axis.

Axis 4 – Institutions and Regional Development

The proposal of this thematic axis is to bring together papers that allow theoretical and methodological reflections on formal and informal, public, community and private institutions, productive arrangements, networks and forms of cooperation; social and economic agents and organizations and their set of institutional relations, among other topics linked to the dynamics of regional development. Studies aiming at a better understanding of the competitiveness of production systems and chains are welcome; characterization, profile and structure of networks cooperation, technological innovation and its influence on regional dynamics; reconversion and regional productive restructuring, and new forms of coordination and governance.

OBJECTIVES OF THE X INTERNATIONAL SEMINAR ON REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT (ISRD):

- To promote the exchange between researchers of Brazilian Institutions and those with researchers of Institutions from other countries, besides bringing together recent graduates, current graduate students and researchers/professionals from other fields of knowledge to the debate on issues related to Regional Development;
- To provide reflection and discussion on the dynamics of regional development in different socio-spatial formations, through actors, assets and institutions involved in processes and policies developed and articulated in different spatial scales;
- Create opportunities to the participants of the event to present their research communication, and its online publication in the Conference Proceedings, disseminating new knowledge in the field of Regional Development;
- Promote interaction and exchange of experiences among researchers and students/researchers of the Graduate Programs in Regional Development and related fields of Brazilian and foreign universities.

RULES FOR FULL PAPER SUBMISSION AND PRESENTATION

Papers must be a full one (not an abstract) and may be submitted by professors, researchers and students of the Regional Development Graduate Programs and programs related to Regional Development, Brazilians and foreigners, in order to be analyzed by a Scientific Committee, formed by specialists in the thematic axes of the event. The paper(s) presentation and its inclusion in the Conference proceedings are conditioned to the registration and payment of the event fee by at least one of the authors.

Paper Submission

- Each participant is allowed to submit a maximum of three papers for the event. In this count will be computed the papers submitted by the applicant both as author and co-author.
- Each paper can have a maximum of four authors.
- Papers to be submitted for the event may be presented orally. The Scientific Committee reserves the right to indicate papers for the “poster” category. The oral presentation may not exceed 15 minutes. After the presentation of all the planned papers for the presentation session, in each room, a time for discussion will be set aside. Posters presentation will be held in a special session, in a specific room for this modality, to be announced in the event schedule.

- Papers should be sent by online submission system, available on the event website. Paper sent by e-mail will not be accepted. The link for submitting the papers is: <http://online.unisc.br/acadnet/anais/index.php/sidr/login>

- Papers that do not comply with the rules of submission and presentation, will not be accepted.

Language requirement of X ISRD

Papers written in Portuguese, Spanish and English will be accepted. The official language of the event is Portuguese, but the papers can also be presented in Spanish and English.

Paper Selection

The Scientific Committee of the event will select the papers based on their suitability to the general theme of the event, related to the thematic axes, originality of the proposal, scientific and academic relevance and contribution in the field of regional development.

Papers selected to be presented at the X ISRD

Only original papers, of authors registered in the event and with the due fees paid, can be presented.

The Conference proceedings will be published in October 2021, after the event, online, and only with the papers effectively presented at the event.

Certificates

- Certificates will be available in October 2021, after the event and in online format.
- Certificates of presentation of papers will only be issued for papers actually presented.
